

Energy from Batteries

Success with Responsibility

BAE Batterien GmbH is a medium-sized privately owned company with a long tradition of manufacturing lead-acid batteries. We produce our high quality batteries in Berlin since 1899.

BAE is worldwide active and our core business is in the production and sales of stationary batteries for the use in back-up power solutions for Utilities, Telecommunication as well as UPS for industrial applications. Besides we can provide the engineering and the installation of the system.

Our products are made according to the highest (environmental) standards. We are DIN-certificated by the German Institute for Standardization, viz. DIN EN ISO 9001 and 14001. During the last years BAE has also strongly developed its market position as a supplier to the renewable energy sector. The quality of our products is very well respected which is confirmed by the impressive customer reference list.

BAE follows market developments and research trends closely, which is why we also strongly focus on cooperation with several university-level institutions.

People are central to BAE, we take particular interest in the professional and also personal development of our staff.

We also take our social responsibility seriously. That's why we support different charitable projects, i.e. "living EQUIA", the Team Berlin at the competition "Solar Decathlon Europe 2010" to design and build the most efficient and technically most innovative house whose residents get supplied energetically only by the power of the sun.
